The Bridgehampton Lock-up was built in 1907 and provided overnight accommodations for local criminals. The jail was located behind what is now the Sotheby’s building on the north side of Main Street. (See red arrow above.)

The jail was moved to its present location on the William Corwith House Museum grounds in 1977.